

Bid for Substitutions

If a publisher releases a new or updated textbook edition before a subject area adoption period ends, the State Textbook Committee can adopt the new edition at a mutually agreed price, not higher than the lowest price offered elsewhere in the U.S. in the past year. The publisher must agree to this as part of their bid. The State Textbook Committee may adopt the new textbook for the remaining subject area adoption period.

Substitution

Substitutions must follow the Oklahoma Administrative Code 720:10-5-6 in addition to 70 O.S. § 16-107:

- (a) Publishers' letters of intent to substitute must specify the book or series being substituted, the one being replaced, and the state contract number being modified. Changes to the letter are only accepted in writing until the submission deadline.
- (b) Substitutions are allowed if the new textbook or materials are of equal or better quality and not so different that they cannot be used alongside the old edition. Substitution is also allowed if the old edition has not been sold in large classroom quantities in the state.
- (c) No substitutions or out-of-cycle adoptions will be accepted during the last year of the contract period.

The four themes of disease, medicine and technology, aging, and exercise are retained to provide lenses through which students explore the body systems within relevant contexts.

 - Enhancements include full color, new and updated content and case studies, the inclusion of a glossary, a tab system for identification of the themes, new assessment tasks, and the inclusion of a research activity.
